

PSB EXERO WELCOMES DR. AMY WILLIAMS TO THE EXECUTIVE TEAM

April 3rd, 2018 - PSB Exero is delighted to announce the arrival of Dr. Amy Williams, Vice President of Cyber Services to the Exero Executive Team. Amy will facilitate the design of some exciting and forward-thinking cyber security features for Exero.

Exero is a private cloud-based business intelligence tool that delivers data and insight from your interconnected devices and other physical and networked environments through a user-friendly dashboard. Exero is an industry leader in helping decision-makers overcome challenges of gathering and comparing data from interconnected devices, providing real-time analysis and visualization.

Amy has extensive experience helping businesses of all sizes with their technology integration and information security issues and specializes in working with complex organizations that manage sensitive data. She will be a vital resource as we continue to expand Exero's predictive capacity relative to information and device safety and security.

In her previous role as Director of Cyber Initiatives for the Citizens Crime Commission of NYC she developed the Crime Commission's alliance with the FBI and worked closely with the FBI on innovative public and private collaborations to combat cybercrime.

As a Trustee Professor at Bentley University she brought several large businesses to campus to work with professors on various pragmatic research projects and won several competitive research grants to facilitate those projects, including two NSF grants.

Additionally, while serving as professor at the University of Tennessee, she started a new information technology program that included courses in database management, artificial intelligence and neural networks, and web-based development and commerce. She also was part of a team that led several new initiatives to take MBA students abroad to visit businesses, which eventually resulted in her being a popular guest lecturer and presenter at conferences and schools around the world.

Dr. Williams is well known for her ability to build communications bridges between executive business management and IT management. She was given a 'Visionary Leadership' award from the American Accounting Association for her work in helping accounting and information technology professionals understand each other better.

She is a prolific author and has served on numerous editorial boards. She has also served as chairperson of 20+ national and organizational task forces or leadership committees and been a leader or member of 40+ organization-wide and departmental committees where problem solving was a critical objective.

Amy's addition to Exero's Executive Team is in response to our commitment to future growth and disruptive leadership for the security integration industry. Exero is a best in class team, in an ever-growing industry.
